*The eyes are halfway down the head. Surprised? I still remember being surprised the first time this was pointed out to me! Once I became aware of this proportion, it seemed like such an obvious measurement to notice. *The edges of the nostrils line up with the tear ducts of the eyes. *The space between the eyes is approximately the width of an eye. *The head is about five eyes wide. This one can be tricky because the shape of the head is often obscured by hair

I WILL BE ABLE TO:

Draw the Face after I will watch the video “How to draw the face Basic Proportions” by Hollymarie_art. I will pay close attention to the Instructor, so I will know how to respond and what to do when it is my turn.

I WILL DO NOW:

I will get ready to work. I will clear my table of all materials.

I HAVE MATERIALS:

I will need: 1. A Laptop, iPad or other device, 2. A Pencil 3. Copy Paper 4. I will also need an open mind & be ready to have fun drawing my face.

I WILL DO:

---

As I watch the video, I will pay close attention, listen for the information I will need. I will stop the video when I need to think and write. I will also remember to answer all the questions to get my full grade. I will do my best to follow all the instructions.

I WILL CLEAN-UP & ANSWER ALL THE QUESTIONS:

1. Complete the following sentence. The width of the eye is usually the same as?
2. From the horizontal line to the chin how do you know where to put the nose & mouth?
3. What part of the face does the edges of the nostrils line up with?
